Linkage Development

Cities/Villages and local authorities are catalysts for change and drivers of development. A multilevel governance approach is needed to deliver development to citizens/villagers and make sure that poor and marginalised groups are included in economic growth policies. But how can governments at all levels cooperate effectively and how can capacities at the national and local level be strengthened.

The concept of Linkage Development is further elaborated as 17th goal under the “Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)”. Despite some positive developments, a stronger commitment to partnership and cooperation is needed to achieve the SDGs. That effort will require coherent policies, an enabling environment for sustainable development at all levels and by all actors and a reinvigorated Global Partnership for Sustainable Development. A successful sustainable development agenda requires partnerships between governments, the private sector and civil society. These inclusive partnerships built upon principles and values, a shared vision, and shared goals that place people and the planet at the centre, are needed at the global, regional, national and local level.

For this reasons the concept of social mobilization is being adapted by Rural Support Organisations, GBTI is one of them who is not only constituting three tiered organizations COs/VOs/LSOs in its programme area but also building capacity of the community with the help of different donor organizations. Pakistan Poverty Alleviation Fund (PPAF) is one of the donors of GBTI in the development sector.

Social Mobilisation

Before any activity to communities takes place, social mobilization has to be carried out. Social mobilization is the act of organizing communities into their own grassroots organisations. It instills a sense of unity and ownership within the village and brings about a change in attitude regarding development. In the social mobilisation approach being followed by GBTI, communities are made aware about their own strength and the opportunities that are available to them in their surroundings. They are taught that when they are organized and act as a single unit, they are better able to access resources and plan their own development according to their needs and not according to the needs of outsiders. In the case of GBTI, in each village, field staff made contact at the village level first; addressing the entire village and introducing them about GBTI's Programme and also to ascertain whether the village was ready and willing to be organised. Next, COs (Community Organisations) were formed at the neighborhood level; members constituting of one man/woman each from willing households in the area. At this stage, the poverty scorecard proves very handy as the GBTI staff was able to guarantee that the poorest households were not being sidelined due to their status. In each CO, a President and Manager were chosen according to the wishes of the members of the CO. The purpose of forming COs is that the women in a neighborhood have the opportunity to save and make a development plan for their own household, i.e. the things that they can do, want to do and what they will need in order to carry it out. The CO meetings provide an avenue and outlet for women to discuss their problems, personal or at the neighborhood level and to obtain support and advice from fellow-members.

Local Body Elections (2015)

Local Body Elections were held in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa on 30th May, 2015. The last local elections in the province took place in February 2005. The local elections in KPK were elected members of district councils, tehsil councils and village councils. Most of the community organisation's members not only participated in local body elections but also won the election. This is only because that being the members of COs, VO and LSO the confidence level was enhanced when they had been participated in the completion of several community physical infrastructure schemes. After winning of local election, these members are now capable enough to present their local issues in a better way and also playing their roles and responsibilities to resolve local problems and issues raised/identified by the community. Following is the detail of winning candidates who are also the members of community organizations (COs/VOs/LSO);
